WOVEN IN LOVE
MADE WITH PASSION

While we all understand how the wedding industry is a multi-billion dollar vertical that generates thousands of opportunities for various enterprises, the ugly side is how utterly wasteful it is... It would be wondrous to see more people caring for just that very thought, lucky for us, Aisha Rao is just that. A woke designer is aware of all the wasteful practices, and she is doing her very part to recreate magic with things that would otherwise be rotting in landfills.

Hailing from Hyderabad, Aisha Rao is actually a lawyer by degree but it was design that caught her eye and she went to further explore her love for fashion in style hubs Barcelona and then in New York. It was only when she came back with the backing of the worldly perspective of fashion that she discovered her signature—occasion wear with a twist.

Wholeheartedly a believer of all things beautiful, Aisha Rao's focus remains on creating ensembles for special milestones, with techniques like applique, zari, aari work, macrame, and more. The focus always remains on how to beautify the existing with the touch of craft. Each garment is made from up-cycled fabrics that come together with her unique vision for creating pieces for the millennial bride with traditional artforms.

The philosophy of ikagai—the Japanese art of mending things to make them even more beautiful runs deep within the roots of the label. Each collection is an ode to this very thought, taking rejected fabrics/pieces of cloth that would otherwise end up adding weight to the world, these are then beautified by adding her very own signature touch of craft, workmanship and extremely cutting edge design that truly makes you believe that if something is treated right, everything can be a piece of art.

Head to them for an artful approach to your big day, her lehengas are one-of-a-kind and will most definitely take the stress of adding a carbon footprint.

Delicate and timeless, Chantilly by Selina Nusrat embodies classic fashion like nobody else

Melding two completely different sensibilities —European and Asian with poise, each garment by Chantilly speaks both languages with ease, it's the kind of style that reflects your personality and Selina Nusrat has helmed it for years with the same ethos.

Nusrat's love for fashion began very early in life and her ambition to excel in this space was a seed that was sown after seeing her aunt work in the industry. She went on to learn all the necessary skills, gain education and empowered herself to form a label that truly spoke her language of love.

Each piece is a symphony of new meets old, backed with versatile silhouettes and fine embroidery in an array of subtle tones that can fuse themselves in any style you identify with. Think timeless fashion, one that never goes off trend and is always on point.

Taking into account a variety of inspirations, the ensembles still manage to keep separates feminine, elegant and distinctive. While each collection has an anchor, her latest one is an ode to the bride herself, "I wanted to show how the vulnerability of a woman on her wedding day can still make her feel bold and beautiful. It's a portrayal of emotions, happiness and inner strength" adds Nusrat.

Papa Don't Preach by Shubhika is a label that captures the flirtatious nature of Indianwear with a whole lot of fun.

THE ESSENCE IS TRADITIONAL WITH AN UNEXPECTED TWIST

Bright hues sprung with fine beads, sequins, a flurry of charms and more, Papa don't preach by Shubhika gives a new definition to how you see your traditional ensembles. With an innate nature of playfulness, each piece is threaded to perfection while keeping this very thought in mind.

While the label was brought to life when now designer Shubhika Davda was still just a student and she would manage her time between college and running a bespoke atelier that tailored thought provoking pieces. Over the years, Shubhika created a name for herself by creating a brand that not only catered to clothes but a whole mood that captured accessories in the same breath. They were equally dramatic and very very distinctive from what was available.

Today Papa Don't Preach is a go-to for the young and restless and all other age groups, her fierce urban outlook combined with an indomitable love for traditional silhouettes and styles creates a winning combination that appeals to everyone.

The bridal couture line was only added to her suite of offerings in 2012, and there has been no looking back, an eclectic mix of taffeta, silk, net, and every fabric under the sun meet glass beads, applique work, motif style sequins and a whole lot of embroidery in a colour palette that simply cannot be missed.

Each collection has a unique stronghold over her iconic aesthetic and is presented with ensembles, accessories, jewellery, shoes and more to match. Completing each look from start to finish without batting an eyelid, simply answering the forever question that troubles every bride—what would I wear with this?

Her fresh take on how you can contemporise your traditional ensemble with the power of great design and colour is infectious. Don't be afraid to take a chance, there is something for every style, mood and function that awaits you. Redefining what Indian couture could actually be, Papa Don't Preach by Shubhika is the designer you need when you truly want to light up your look.

Print PARTY

Punit Balana's creations are an ode to all things festive

When selecting an ensemble for a special occasion, there are many things to be considered; your style, the fit, the look, the accessories but most of all, it's about how they make you feel. It is this very ideology that Punit Balana's designs are devised after. His looks are jubilant and always have a specific occasion in mind, all you need to do is match the two!

Crafted in the pink city Jaipur, Punit Balana has been known to dress the likes of Alia Bhatt, Kareena Kapoor Khan, Jhanvi Kapoor, Madhuri Dixit and many other Bollywood A-listers, what makes his designs so irresistible to them you ask? The answer is simple—his creations are made for that 'feel good' factor and nothing else.

An eclectic mix of prints, patterns, traditional crafts and more, each garment is tailored to fit a special occasion. Be it weddings, festivals, intimate gatherings or anything else you have in mind, he has one for each one! His designs can never be categorised under one silo, they are everything you want in occasion wear and more. Each creation promises his impeccable tailoring, happy prints, and very unique style that will ensure that you stand apart.

There is nothing better than having an ensemble give you a lift of confidence and Charu & Vasundhara's creations promise exactly that.

The mother daughter duo began their journey with one goal in mind—to create luxury Western wear with Indian craftsmanship. Their silhouettes vary from a-line classics to draped dresses that are perfect for that show stopping moment in your life. Empowered with details like metallic embroidery, sequin patterns, and flouncy drapes, their clothes have an international appeal that can blend into any occasion.

Taking their cues from global trends and amalgamating it with a chic yet modern approach, each creation comes to life with careful due diligence armed with deep research, apt sourcing of fabrics that will withstand the test of time and most importantly fine craftsmanship.

Each collection takes its inspiration from self actualisation, much like the ethos of the brand, each of these garments are designed to boost your inner goddess. # THE Shooting STAR

A true testament to the fact that age and experience are not the only things that add to wisdom, Janhvi Kapoor today is 24, a wonderful actress with plenty of notable films to count as experience, a bundle of great movies just shy of releasing, an unabashed woman of today and very warm. All in all, an actor to watch out for and to watch constantly.

If I could tell one secret to my Instagram followers it would be a question, really, why do you guys follow me? I think I post plenty of rubbish” laughs Janhvi Kapoor when asked about her 12.7 million followers who are glued to the screen just to watch her every move. Warm like sunshine and happy as a pod, Kapoor is your quintessential girl, uninterrupted. Her undying love for cinema began at a young age and while being an actor was always on the cards, she sees that there is no shortcut to success. “Nothing is guaranteed, there are no formulas for anything, the only thing you can do is try to be honest to your craft, keep your head down and work hard. There is no set rule that defines the kind of films or a type of image one should have. If you have a good story, then work hard at it and try to find honesty and it’ll get its due. Because at the end of the day we are trying to make good cinema, that’s the agenda and everything else is just a byproduct.”

Surrounded by glitterati constantly doesn’t phase her inner being, her weakness includes athleisure and keeping things light and easy, even for makeup (she is currently the face of Nykaa), she loves the no-makeup look, one that literally comes closest to her truest self. Other things that are in her list of ‘things I currently love’ are making reels with her friends, the song Rowdy Baby that always gets her in the mood to be productive, saris with a touch of sequins and rhinestones and

Titanic—a movie she can never be bored of. When asked about love, she smiles and says, “love to me is my family, it’s about choosing something as a priority over and over again, and never giving up on it. I hope I know what being in-love feels like soon”

In the times when work is the utmost priority and the only thing that gives her salvation, she still finds the time to keep true to her little rituals which keep her sane, a trip to the Tirupati Balaji Temple in Andhra Pradesh has been a mandate that she has followed before every project. Unfortunately she hasn’t been able to do it since covid-19 hit but she hopes to go back soon. Inspired by her iconic mother and father, she fondly tells us “I find inspiration from everyone I meet, my immediate tendency is to always look at the good in people and glorify their positive attributes.” One that definitely and positively impacted her is Gunjan co-star and award winning actor Pankaj Tripathi, they hit it off immediately and constantly drew from each other’s energy in the best way.

“What I love about being an actress is being in front of the camera, learning so much, meeting new people and travelling. But what’s truly magical is when you have that moment of truth in front of the camera, a moment of discovery where you feel like you have discovered a new aspect of your character, that feeling is unparalleled, you really feel like you have created something special and honest” explains Kapoor.

When asked about weddings her fondest memories are those of close friends and family’s functions like Sonam Kapoor’s wedding in 2018 and a few more but what she remembers most from them is the amazing love and heartfelt celebrations that resonated through them. The learnings from those have been that one must carry a change of clothes that can be slipped into post all the pictures, entries and festivities so you can truly be yourself, Manish Malhotra can always make any ensemble dreamy and beautiful, saris are forgiving and must be worn more often and finally, something to invest in is a white chikankari suit that literally suits any occasion.

Someday Kapoor hopes to find a partner who she can be her unabashed self with and not be afraid to spend the rest of her years by his side. The ceremony of course would be a classic South Indian affair with lots of traditional food and all her friends and family by her side.

Finery AT ITS BEST

The House of MBj has been making jewellery since the past two centuries and they have only gotten better with time.

The journey has been carried on for six generations and so it's no surprise that they understand the art of passing on artful creations comes from their own experience. The strongest and most popular pieces are mostly based in gold that come with diamonds and polki. The craftsmanship and masterful eye required to create fine polki is something that very few labels have been able to capture and continue successfully for so long.

Seldom do you come across a jewellery label that has held on to the same principles of fine craftsmanship from their inception, the House of MBj is that rare gem who has and continues to till this very day. They started their journey into the world of all things fine all the way back in 1897, from then on they have gone to create some of the most creative and sought after creation in the market and retail out of some of the most popular cities in India.

The house strongly believes in the power of creating heirloom jewellery and this innate nature of crafting pieces that will last a lifetime have made them one of the most trusted jewellers in the market here and internationally.

EACH PIECE HAS A STORY TO TELL, A
THEME TO CELEBRATE AND AN OCCASION TO MATCH

A creative mix of contemporary and antique is the essential theme House of MBj meditates on. The result is an eclectic mix of keepsake worthy kadhas, intricate chokers, elaborate chandelier earrings among others that have enticed their clientele for years on end.

Each piece has a story to tell, a theme to celebrate and an occasion to match, and bridal pieces are what the house closely resonates to. An array of statement pieces that feature a variety of gemstones including Burmese rubies, Colombian emeralds, polki diamonds and many more, each one is one to cherish. Their pieces have the power to make you believe in transformative jewellery and make your wedding look one to remember.

THE Crowning JEWEL

The Goenka house has been synonymous with fine diamonds for decades of excellence and in 2019 they launched the Goenka India label under the watchful eye of Nitin Goenka.

THE ART OF MIXING
DIAMONDS WITH OTHER STONES WITHOUT LOSING FOCUS IS UNIQUE

Staying true to their roots and giving it a modern twist, Kotawala presents diamond jewellery in a whole new mood. Their treatment is fresh, the diamonds are brilliant and the craftsmanship is unmissable!

Hailing from the city of Kotah, Rajasthan, the label was originally launched by GDK Jewels in the 18th century. Over the past two hundred years, Kotawala has preserved the fine art of diamond jewellery making and only uplifted it over time. Infact, one of the biggest challenges with diamonds is mixing them with other gemstones without losing focus, Kotawala has the keen eye to make each gem shine alike and most importantly, make them shine in harmony.

The art of creating diamond jewelry in its traditional form flourished in Kotah during the 18th century. The jewels crafted today are woven with a rich family tradition, passed down from generation to generation resulting in its distinct quality perfected through skilled artisans and craftsmen. It is the brand's relentless dedication to perfection that has led it to be the legacy heritage jewellers they are today. Their collections include an eclectic mix of multi-layered diamond lariats that can be worn separately or together; rings of all types, bangles that will stack up for the big day and can be worn as statement singles for daily wear; bracelets that always remain timeless and earrings that can be passed down generations.

MASTERG:
BEING A

In the world of fashion, breaking the norm may be the trend but behind closed doors there are few who are looking inwards and changing the narrative, MasterG is India's first all women ecosystem that meditates on empowering them for a skilled future.

It's not uncommon to feel like we aren't doing enough for our society, in a country like India, there is a constant need to capacitate, invest and warrant causes that need a louder voice, one in particular caught founder Gayatri Jolly's eye and once she saw it, there was no looking back. Welcome MasterG, a forum that works tirelessly to skill women to foray into the artisanal territory of making garments. Each woman who walks in, strides out with a skill and shield to make a definitive change.

After graduating from Parsons, New York and working with the big wigs of the industry like Armani, Diane Von Furstenburg, Jolly gained experience in design and management in the fashion industry. Once she was back, the disparity in the workforce between men and women was evident and glaring and she knew she had to do something about it. That led to the birth of MasterG, wherein she designed the 'Breaking Patterns Pedagogy' to make it an ideological tool to inspire systemic and generational changes. She is driven to democratise the power of making patterns and provide affordable training to individuals who aspire to, but lack the access to tools to realise their fullest potential.

The aim is simple, to break the pattern of exclusion and welcome women pattern makers, moreover decision makers in the industry and the world. More importantly, to introduce a new definition of business which is ecologically as well as socially sustainable. "We have realised that fast growth and financial success does not result in social consciousness towards gender parity, ethical production and raising a humane industry" adds Jolly.

Since 2015 over 2000 women hailing from the marginalised neighborhoods have enabled their potential by breaking out of patterns of disparity. With seven active Training Centers, we are partaking in building resilient communities across Delhi, Haryana, Uttar Pradesh and Gujarat and around 25 centres more to come by the end of 2021. Being a part of the 131 companies that Acumen (a leading global company investor), they have reached marginalised neighbourhoods better and created a data-driven impact to break the last frontier that keeps women from becoming figures of mastery. What lies ahead is a plan to develop a digital platform, audio-visual resources in regional languages and scaling our training to reach more underserved youth, pan India.

Is there anything chocolate can't solve? The answer is nothing. So when it comes to celebrations and festivities, it's imperative they are present. Over the years, traditional mithais have become something that are exclusively reserved for ceremonies and chocolates have populated the giftables, especially when it comes to weddings. La Chocolat has been a part of countless celebrations ever since inception and over the years they have only grown stronger.

Established in 2008 by founder Anju Aggarwal, the idea was to bring in artistry in the world of chocolate gifting with a passionate eye for bespoke details. Over the past decade, Aggarwal has crafted countless unique flavour profiles and made them look like a dream every time.

The most prevalent feature in all these creations has been their truthful approach about the shelf life, these are instant pick-me-ups and aren't made with any preservatives, which is what lends to the unparalleled flavour and quality.

The luxurious gift hampers are made to order keeping in mind the occasion, the tastebuds of the couple, family and friends and most importantly, they specialise in bulk orders. Capacity has never been an issue for Aggarwal, in fact, she embraces it with ease.

TAKE A picture, IT LASTS longer

And it does, which is why you need to select a photographer for your wedding that understands all your needs. Take a deep dive into the essentials of what you should consider before you seal the deal.

Come 2020, weddings have changed completely, gatherings are smaller, clothes are lighter, gifts are bigger, invites are digital and photographs are everything! While they always held an important place in the list of 'things you must invest in', the age of social media has made it much more important. And this is why it's imperative that you and your wedding photographer synergise and understand each other. The added frills that were once optional are now basics that need to be included in your list of requirements—teaser trailers, pre-wedding pictures, wedding videos, live streaming, reel friendly content, instant social media pictures and videos, the list goes on... While weddings may have become less extravagant the nuances remain the same, in fact they are more in focus. And since we are living in uncertain times, this is the one way everyone can attend is—pictures and social media.

The standard practice for selecting a wedding photographer includes a few approaches that vary from knowing a photographer's work really well or closely viewing their work through another wedding you've attended or seen closely or hearing about them through a close resource, research, a friend/relative. That being said, everyone's process is personal but no matter how you make the choice, these are what should be the deal breakers for you.

Watermarks are everywhere, be sure to let the photographer know exactly how you feel about them—would you like your photographs with or without them. If there is a clash of interest, have an open discussion and inquire if there is a middle ground that suits both your and their needs.

Clearly state the number of functions you have, where they are located, what all you definitely want captured and then ask for a price, not a bulk wedding price. This makes it clear for everyone what is to be expected, how many hours approximately it will take and what all is on the agenda.

Social media demands us to act instantly no matter what situation we are in, and weddings are especially tricky. It is not uncommon for wedding hashtags to trend with images that are seldom approved by the couple themselves (usually taken by friends or family out of love), but if you are specific about how your wedding appears on Instagram and other digital platforms have a chat with your photographer to get a few edited images a day from the festivities so they can be released instantly and distributed wherever needed with your consent.

A wedding photographer almost never works alone, there is always a team involved which leads to multiple angles and better coverage of the event. This also leads to a large 'dump' of photographs. Believe it or not, you might not get to see this large gamut of pictures from your own wedding and just be privy to the selected edited few. Be sure to check with your photographer on their policy for this and then make a choice.

Always discuss timelines for receiving your photographs, videos and resources, put it down in the contract/email/any formal source of agreement so that there is no room for change.

While you may be picking the one who can capture your dreamy day just right, don't forget that this is also something that will be shared on other platforms, wedding portals and channels. Within your contract include what kind of release rights the photographers hold, which images are consented for this purpose and a timeline that deciphers exactly when they can go out.

Most of all, keep communication open, it is the lack of discussion prior to the festivities that lead to irreparable repercussions on the big day

Speaking of work on display, always remember the website, Instagram and portfolio only carries those 'magical shots', so if you are selecting a photographer based on those, do make sure you see the complete set before you make a decision. Ask for more pictures from that particular wedding to get a complete sense of how it was captured.

AND LASTLY, NO QUESTION IS TOO SMALL OR TOO SILLY, NO REQUEST IS TOO OUTRAGEOUS, IT'S YOUR WEDDING AND EVENTUALLY THIS IS ALL YOU WILL HAVE AS A WINDOW TO THAT WONDERFUL TIME, MAKE SURE IT'S EXACTLY HOW YOU WANT IT.

Glow RIGHT

Celebrity makeup artist and hairstylist extraordinaire, Komal Gulati's touch of magic is always in demand. Here are her quick tips and tricks that she swears by after being in the business of beauty for decades.

A signature Komal Gulati bride look would be?

Something that enhances the bride's natural features and uplifts her face. I also ensure to stay true to tone and avoid that 'dull' or 'bronzed' look that comes in with the wrong base.

Two bridal looks that never fail?

Number one has to be nude, it suits every face and the number two is smoky eyes. Both of them are classics and always create an impact.

The one thing a bride should do before selecting her makeup artist?

Definitely check her instagram page! This gives you a great insight into the artist's innate aesthetic and helps you decide if it resonates with yours.

Trends that you are seeing currently?

Covid-19 has definitely made gatherings intimate, so lighter makeup and open hair with soft waves is something clients are repeatedly asking for. Another change that has made a significant difference is that the ceremony happens in the beginning and the rest of the day/night are spent enjoying the festivities, this is a plus for artists since the first few hours is when makeup looks its best.

Things the bride should always have with her?

Since it's almost impossible for the bride to carry these things herself, her shadow or best friend must always have the bride's potli, a mask, the exact lip shade the bride is wearing, compact, safety pins and mint.

One trend that can be avoided?

Chunky glitter on the eyes is always tricky and can be easily done without. And never wear the wrong foundation shade, it ruins the whole look.

Makeup products that have stood the test of time?

Lakme waterproof kajal and M.A.C Pro Longwear Fluidline Eyeliner Gel in Blacktrack.
